

Dr. Jonathan Kubesch is a Forage Specialist with the University of Arkansas Cooperative Extension Service. He holds degrees from The Ohio State University, the University of Tennessee, and Virginia Tech. Dr. Kubesch's agricultural roots trace back to his grandparents' operation at Good Enough Farm in Peru, Indiana, where he gained early experience with registered Angus seedstock, commercial hay production, and row-crop systems.